

COME WORK ON
RESEARCH PAPERS
WITH US!

CONTRIBUTING TO RESEARCH PAPERS
AS A CHILD-BRIGHT PARTNER WITH LIVED AND LIVING EXPERIENCE

RESEARCH CO-AUTHORSHIP

- You could have your name included as a co-author of the paper
- You will be credited for significant contributions to the research paper or project
- You share responsibility and accountability for the work
- You are recognized for working on the paper (e.g. attending meetings, editing, etc.)
- You may be asked to promote the paper after it is published

OR

RESEARCH ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

- Your name will show up in the acknowledgements section of the paper, with your consent
- You will receive credit along with others who contributed to the project and are not co-authors
- You may have participated in data collection, consultation, and/or advisory work

It is never mandatory to be mentioned in the research paper. You can always contribute and remain anonymous.

PARTNERS WITH LIVED AND LIVING EXPERIENCE MAKE GOOD CO-AUTHORS!

Your lived and living experiences are valuable! Researchers need to understand these experiences to connect with family, caregiver, youth, and child audiences to do relevant, meaningful, and impactful research.

WHAT ARE THE OPPORTUNITIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES FOR THIS ROLE? (ALL ARE OPTIONAL)

Dedicating up to 2-3 hours a month to the paper for about a year, though time may vary depending on the paper; this could include attending meetings with the writing group

Contributing to the interpretation of results by sharing your knowledge and views. Letting the researchers know why this research is important to partners with lived and living experience

Contributing to writing and/or providing feedback on drafts of the paper

Reviewing and approving the paper for submission to be published

With support from the research team, completing the journal's conflict of interest and authorship forms

If you still have questions, please reach out to the Engagement Program team at engagement@child-bright.ca
We are happy to help!

Please note this infographic is not exhaustive but offers essential points to consider
Adapted from the BRIGHT Coaching Manuscript Development Document by the CHILD-BRIGHT Engagement Program